How to Access “Day One” PowerPoint Slides on Blackboard

The slides from the first class day of Scientific Calculus are posted in the Blackboard Learning System. This is a secure website that requires you to log in. Follow the steps below in order to access these slides. (NOTE: You should print the slides and insert them into your class notes.)

1. Go to the website https://blackboard.richmond.edu. (Or click on the link on our course webpage.) Click on “Login”.

2. Log in with the same username and password you use for your regular UR student account.

3. Under “My Courses”, you should see a link to our course (Scientific Calculus I). Click on it.

4. The next page you see will include a list of recent announcements that are relevant to the course. Be sure to read them — your professors are assuming you did.

5. On the left side of the current page is a set of blue boxes. Click on the one that says “Course Documents”.

6. Click on the “Slides from Day 1 ...” link. On the resulting page, click on “Mathematics and Science”.
